NOT IN IMMEDIATE DANGER

Irishman's Companion in Lion's Cage
Had No Intention of Making a Meal of Him.

"Want a job, do yer," said the manager of the traveling circus to the hungry Irish applicant. "Well, I'll tell yer what I'll do. You shall have two dollars a week and yer grub if you'll dress up in a tiger skin and lie down in the corner of the lion's cage. Fact is, we're rather short of animals just now."

Frightened as he was at the prospect of entering the lion's den, our out-of-work friend was forced by hunger to accept, and having had a good square meal, was duly sewn up in the tiger skin and bundled through a small door at the back of the lion's cage. Trembling with terror his eyes no sooner got used to the gloom—for it was not yet show-time and the lights were out—when he perceived the king of beasts glaring at him from the opposite side of the cage. "Oh, oh, oh," cried he, "my poor wife! Shall I ever see Ould Ireland again? Oh, oh, don't eat me Mr. Lion, don't eat me!"

Just at this moment he was astounded to hear from the interior of the lion a gruff voice which said:—"That's all right, oocky, I'm an Irishman myself."

BIG NAME FOR SMALL BOAT

Youngster Felt He Had a Right to It,
Seeing What His Playmates Had Called Theirs.

The small boy of the family had just become the owner of a 14-foot row boat and, after the custom which prevails on Great South bay, was entitled to the title of "Captain." Because of his new dignity he assumed a critical attitude. His first discovery that things were out of kilter on the bay was announced to his father when he came from a tour of inspection.

"Pop," said he, "there's two ducking skiffs in the canal, neither more'n about ten feet long, and just big enough for one man, and what do you think they are named?"

"Tell me, son."

"One is 'Dreadnought I' and the other is 'Dreadnought II.'"

"What are you going to call your boat?"

"I think I'll call her 'Indomitable.'"

Good to the Ghosts.

Every ten years the Eskimos hold the dance to the dead, when ghosts are supposed to come out of their coffins and visit the Kos-ga, where they are given a feast, and retire well filled for another ten years. Sometimes the food is taken to the burying ground to save the spirits the trouble of moving. When a child is born among the islanders it takes the name of the last deceased member of the family, and on it devolves the duty of feeding its foster father's spirit. The Eskimos have a horror of being childless, because their spirits will languish and their name be forgotten. As they say: "S'pose no milk-a-nina (children)—ghost plenty hungry." Often an Eskimo will beggar himself giving a great feast in honor of his illustrious ancestor; but he gains great renown thereby, and places all his visitors under life-long obligations to him.—Wide World Magazine.

Expected a "Ripping" Time.

A merry schoolboy was about to spend his vacation on his grandfather's farm. He expected to enjoy a great and glorious time. The day before his departure, his mother, passing his room, saw him kneeling beside a chair in the corner with his head bowed. As the lad was still in the same position when she reappeared the door, some ten minutes later, the mother stopped.

"Well, Richard, what are you doing?"

The boy looked up pleasantly. "I'm 'most through," he announced, with a deprecatory wave of the hand. Then after another moment or so of silence, "I'm just getting my prayers said up before I go to grandpa's in the country. I 'spect I'll be too busy to say 'em there," he explained.

Why Number Is Repeated.

Why does the telephone operator always repeat the number called for by a subscriber? This question probably has occurred to nearly every one, and the answer is given in The New York Telephone Review. The reason is that the "calling party" may have an opportunity to correct the operator if she makes an error. The operators, however, are trained to expect some kind of an answer. Their attention being keyed up to receive a possible correction in case they make a mistake, it would be of great assistance if they were given a polite "thank you" or some other affirmative answer in case they repeat the number correctly.

Origin of Steeplechasing.

The Grand National, though the chief event of the steeplechasing world, was not established until 1839, because the steeplechase is a late development of horse racing introduced about a century ago from Ireland. It was originally, as the name implies, a cross-country contest between hunting men, who made some distant church steeple their winning post. The earliest recorded match of the kind was run in 1752, from Buttevant church to the spire of St. Leger church, in county Cork. But what is considered "the first regular steeplechase" followed the festivity of an Irish hunt dinner in 1803.—Westminster Gazette.

Facts in Nature

FOR centuries it has been known that Nature's most valuable health giving agents for the cure of disease are found in our American forests. Over forty years ago Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute at Buffalo, N.Y., used the powdered extracts as well as the liquid extracts of native medicinal plants, such as Bloodroot and Queen's root, Golden Seal and Stone root, Cherry bark and Mandrake, for the cure of blood diseases. This prescription as put up in liquid form was called and has enjoyed a large sale for all these years in every drug store in the land. You can now obtain this powdered extract in sugar-coated tablet form of your medicine dealer, or send five in one-cent postage stamps for trial box to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N.Y., and tablets will be mailed, postage prepaid.

DR. PIERCE'S

Golden Medical Discovery

The "Golden Medical Discovery" makes rich, red blood, invigorates the stomach, liver and bowels and through them the whole system. Skin affections, blotches, boils, pimples and eruptions—result of bad blood—are eradicated by this alternative extract—as thousands have testified.
